Mayhem, murder, mimes!?!

The Thunderbird Theatre Company presents:

"Death Play"

Since when did dying on stage become a crime? Can a Shakespearean monologue win against a mime pretending he's trapped in box? Why is the fate of live theater in the hands of a clown? It's act or die, or die trying.

Now in its twelfth year, The Thunderbird Theatre Company presents "Death Play". The third installment in the critically acclaimed sketch comedy series, "Serve By Expiration" written by Sang S. Kim. "Death Play" is a full length ninety (90) minute sketch. As a full length sketch, "Death Play" possesses all the wit and satire of sketch comedy reluctantly married to an actual attempt at plot development.

Directed by Thunderbird co-founder, Bryce Allemann, "Death Play" reveals the often rumored but never seen underground world of performance arts competitions to the death. Finally, "Death Play" fulfills the love-hate-confusion relationship for anyone who has experienced independent theater even accidentally.

"Death Play" opens March 11th and runs each Thursday through Saturday until March 27th. Produced by the Thunderbird Theatre Company, the play is being performed at San Francisco's EXIT Theatre, 156 Eddy Street San Francisco 94102. All performances begin at 8:00p.m. Ticket Cost: $15 - $20.
